Introduction

What is Autism?

Autism is used to describe a spectrum of lifelong developmental difficulties that affects how a person communicates and interacts with people and their environment. All people with autism will have difficulties with communication, interaction and certain behaviours; however this will affect individuals differently. Some people with autism will also have difficulties with learning, mental health (such as aggressive behaviour or anxiety) or other conditions.

Therefore a diagnosis of autism is the beginning of a journey, and it is important to understand how autism affects each individual and what their needs are.

Why am I receiving this booklet?

You are receiving this booklet as part of an Autism information pack. This is because you or your child has been given a diagnosis of autistic spectrum disorder.

How do I use this booklet?

As described above, individuals with autism will have different strengths and weakness and it is therefore important to be aware of all the different resources and support available to children and their families. This booklet summarises some of the important resources both locally and nationally that can provide information and support in managing autism.

This booklet lists the resources that can be found in the autism pack which will allow you to focus on what you think you will need going forward. We would highly recommend that you attend one of the parenting courses listed on page 4. These provide information and training (usually over an 8 week period) to help parents understand their child's difficulties and needs. They also provide sessions on managing behaviour and anxiety, which are common difficulties.

What is the Milton Keynes Local Offer?

The Milton Keynes local offer is the place to find local services for children and young people with special educational needs and disabilities. It is created for children and young people, their families and the professionals that work with them.
